

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A conveyor system having an inlet, an outlet, and a first endless conveying element having a contact surface and configured to transport at least one object along a transportation path from proximate the inlet to proximate the outlet. Securing means are also provided for securing the at least one object to the contact surface along a secured portion of the transportation path.

5